Special Police Positions Will Be Discontinued

Because of the absence of Councilman R. R. Smith from council meeting Tuesday night, Councilman G. A. R. Steiner read the report of the Police committee in regard to two investigations which had been conducted during the past few weeks.

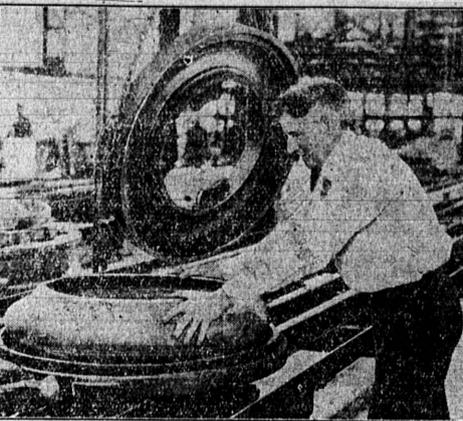

After a thorough investigation into the matter of maintaining special part-time police officers in the McDonald Tract and Walteria, the committee reported, Steiner said, that both positions should be discontinued August 1. The committee's recommendation was approved by the council without discussion.

Fire Chief Ben Hannebrink's dismissal of Leslie Paxman, fireman on July 5, was upheld by the investigating committee and the council also confirmed that report. Paxman had asked for a hearing on the matter and this was granted by the committee last week. The council approved the fire chief's appointment of J. E. McMaster to succeed Paxman.

In regard to the investigation regarding the dismissal of the two special police officers, the investigation was launched by the Police committee at the request of several citizens in the McDonald Tract who claimed M. O. Sullivan, the officer, was unfit for the position and that a large number of Tract residents felt that a police officer was unnecessary there.

The decision to discontinue the position of special officer at Walteria was a new angle in the investigation as nothing had been heard about the city hall in regard to Walteria's policeman, W. K. Adolph, garage repair shop operator, has been special officer in that district for several months.

Firestone Emphasizes Craftsmanship

Harvey S. Firestone, world famous, tire magnate and outstanding industrialist shown working on the tire molds in the mammoth Firestone Factory at Los Angeles.

"There is no American industry where pride of craftsmanship is greater than in the Firestone factories," says R. C. Tucker, vice-president and general sales manager of the Western Firestone factories. "Mr. Firestone has long recognized that it takes something more than materials, skill and equipment to build the best products," explains Tucker. "In the vast Firestone organization this something more is a pulling together spirit among all of the 15,000 designers and builders of Firestone products. Each of these craftsmen is a Firestone stockholder-partners with Mr. Firestone in the business. Each shares responsibility and reward with the active head of the business. To these men sales and profits mean far more than material gain. Efficiency and progress are the natural results."

"The personal, direct interest of every employee in making the best tires it is possible to build undoubtedly has been a big factor in the remarkable list of records held by Firestone. No one gets any bigger thrill out of the Indianapolis races, for instance, than Firestone employees, because the tires they build have carried all the winners to victory for twelve consecutive years. The same in the great transcontinental runs and other supreme tests of tire strength and stamina. "The fact that every tire Firestone builds bears the name Firestone and must measure squarely up to the Firestone quality standards is another important reason for the pride of craftsmanship and the indomitable spirit found in the Firestone factories."

Rumble Seat Proves Stout Woman's Trap

From the exasperating seat yesterday afternoon. Hasty questions by a Herald representative who happened to be driving by the scene revealed that the lady is well over 200 pounds, but that she leaped into the seat with remarkable grace early in the afternoon. After a short ride, Henry took her home, but she was unable to free herself.

Two neighbors were assisting Henry, tugging and straining at the woman's arms trying to help her out. Suggestions were passed by the rapidly increasing crowd but none seemed to do any good. Tamperers became erratic and a serious quarrel broke out among two disinterested spectators as to when prosperity will return.

A Last Resource
"It's no use," one assisting gentleman said as he mopped his brow. And then his eyes gleamed with a new hope. "I've got it! We'll have to call a tinsmith or somebody who's got some tinner's shears and have him bring over his tools and cut her out of this," he exclaimed.

Henry protested. He did not want his car cut by a tinsmith. "You get a tinner, Henry—anything to get me out of this," the aggrieved lady interposed. Henry went as a last resource.

Denies Human Anchors
An ice cream merchant drove up and began to do a good business, even making a sale to the lady occupying the center of the stage, thereby condemning her resisters to further anguish.

Twenty minutes later Henry returned with a man who carried a pair of heavy metal shears. It was the work of a few minutes and then with a burst of energy on the part of the lady, Henry himself, and three spectators, the lady was released.

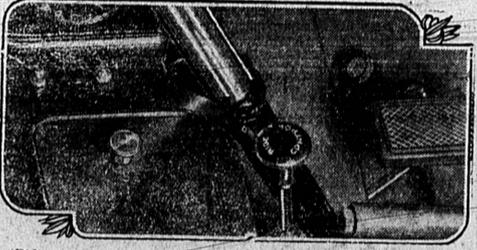

Immediately afterward she denied that it took eight other people, two on each wheel, to hold the automobile down as she strained out of the rumble seat. Today Henry is having the machine welded back as it was—but he said, as he drove off yesterday, that he will never take the lady riding with him again, and muttered something about "calling in a truck next time."

Kipp May Change Mind About Jury

George D. Kipp, 811 Cota avenue, is scheduled to go on trial before a local jury tomorrow. Friday afternoon at two o'clock on a charge of intoxication. Kipp demanded a jury hearing, but later reports indicate he may change his mind and discard the 12 arbiters. However, local police have impounded a jury, members of which were warned to be at the court room in the city hall tomorrow afternoon. Kipp was arrested by Police Chief Calder and Sergeant John Stroh July 13 at a local business house where he was reported causing a disturbance.

Ride Control Is Packard Feature

New Device Actually Fits Car to Road; Packard Engineers Assert; Is on All New Models Now on Display

Ride control, the newest thing in motoring, has come in for a great amount of discussion in practically every part of the world since its introduction to the public just a short time ago with the advent of the new Packard cars on which it made its first appearance.

Even up to the time that the Packard Motor Car Company actually was in production on its new models equipped with ride control, but before the new car had been announced, engineers of the industry were holding long and heated discussions on need for something which would better riding comfort. They agreed that there could be no control over the road's temperature or even completely over speed, three most important factors in determining riding comfort. Shock absorber adjustment had to be a compromise, the engineers held, and no adjustment was possible that would fit all conditions.

Requires Little Effort
The new device gives the driver control over the ride of all persons in the car at all times, no matter what the temperature, the character of the road or the rate of speed, through making it possible to adjust the shock absorbers, positively and instantly. Adjustment is made through pulling or shoving the handle of a plunger on the dash, as shown above. It requires practically no effort.

The Packard shock absorbers are of the two-way hydraulic type. Such devices are simply pumps which force oil from one cylinder to another through restricted passages, as action of the springs operate their plungers. The size of the oil passages determines the amount of resistance offered to the spring action, as greater power is needed to force the oil through a small passage, in the same time that it would go through a larger passage.

NEW COLUMBIA OFFICIAL TAKES OVER DUTIES HERE
E. M. Johnson, veteran sheet mill operator, has taken over the duties of superintendent of the Columbia Steel sheet mill this week. Johnson, his wife and daughter, drove to Torrance from Leechburg, Pa., where he was in charge of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company plant, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. The new official takes the place left vacant by the sudden death of Dave Keener some months ago. At the present time the Johnson family are living at the Cravens Apartments.

Cong. Joe Crail Senate Candidate

Congressman Joe Crail, after three terms as a member of the House, announces his intention to seek the Republican nomination to succeed Senator Samuel M. Shortridge.

Congressman Joe Crail today became an active candidate for the United States Senate with the announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination to succeed Senator Samuel M. Shortridge at the August, 1932, primary election.

During the last three sessions of Congress, Crail represented the old Tenth Congressional District, which has now been cut into four new Congressional districts as a result of the adoption of new state reapportionment legislation.

Congressman Crail's decision to become a candidate for the Senate, he stated, has been made at this time to clarify the political situation in his old district where several prominent Republican leaders will seek the nomination for one of the four new houses of representative seats established. The Republican party organization has been actively behind Congressman Crail in each of his campaigns.

It is a well known political fact that Congressman Crail has never accepted a campaign contribution from any person or organization other than from his twin brother, Judge Charles S. Crail, who for the last 14 years has been on the Superior Court bench in Los Angeles County.

'Orphan Annie's' State Not Confined In Bleak 'Asylums'

By the United Press
The "orphan asylum" is a rapidly vanishing institution in California. Today the youngster handicapped by the loss of one or both its parents, will receive financial aid from the state, but in a private home, not an orphanage.

A recent survey shows that less than 1000 children are receiving state aid in orphanages, while more than 12,000 are living at home with their mothers. It costs the state approximately $2,000,000 every two years to support these children. Last year $356,039 went to the support of orphans in Los Angeles County.

RACKETEER ORDERS 'TYPEWRITER'
SANDUSKY, Ohio.—(UP)—Federal prohibition agents disguised as Detroit racketeers, reported that a bootlegger at a lake resort where they had stopped near here ordered a machine gun.

Clothes DO Make A Difference—For Benefit of Girls

By the United Press

Here's consolation, after a fashion, for the plump girl. The modern "fatty" weighs three pounds more than grandma did at her age, and still be three pounds lighter.

The difference, state officials say, is in the costume. It appears that grandma's garb, by the scales and dictators, was six pounds heavier than the scanty vestments of Miss 1931.

The year 1873 brought in the bulky bustle with added weight of one and one-half pounds. In 1890 the girls almost had to call out a derrick to dress themselves in heavy jackets and trailing skirts, with leg-o'-mutton sleeves and myriad petticoats, to say nothing of all the corsets and all that went on before that.

Today, however, daughter may slip off to the summer dance in a mere six or eight ounces or so.

RIDE OR EAT?
Do You Spend More On Your Car or Food Than You Eat?
By the United Press
California apparently would rather ride than eat. This is indicated by figures compiled by the U. S. Department of Commerce showing that while California's population spends 20.29 per cent of its income for food, it spends 23.56 per cent for the purchase of automobiles.
